ABSTRACT

An iterative technique for performing adapting compression parameters on one or more images is provided, where each image in a sequence of images is compressed using, for example, Part 1 of the JPEG2000 Standard. Subsequent images in the sequence of images are then processed using an adapted value of the parameter(s) determined for a previous image.